

Africa Uncovered: Culture, Travel and Work on the Big Continent is a Max Norton DiscoveryLogue. This innovative series straddles the boundaries of traditional travel writing by providing insight into life in some of the world's most interesting and culturally diverse countries. Max Norton has spent 15 years working in international development and has used his experiences to write the fictionalised series. Max gives readers the inside perspective on the way governments, international donors, businesses and ordinary people interact to provide the pieces in the cultural jigsaw. Africa Uncovered: Culture, Travel and Work on the Big Continent is set mainly in Malawi and Lesotho and also encompasses experiences in Kenya, Mozambique, Swaziland and Tanzania. Max Norton's story-telling takes you on a journey touching themes including African traditional beliefs, the "Big Man" culture, corruption, diplomacy, expatriate life, HIV/AIDS, international development, poverty and the roles of government and the police. Norton uncovers aspects of culture, travel and work on the big continent that you will struggle to find in other literature. The DiscoveryLogue series also includes Caribbean Uncovered, India Uncovered and a special volume, Three Continents Uncovered, featuring all three other DiscoveryLogues and extensive additional material.
